VOICES: A Program of self-discovery and empowerment for girls.

VOICES was created to assist girls ages 12 to 18 in exploring themes of self, connection with others, health and their journeys ahead. Created by Stephanie S. Covington, Ph.D., a leading expert in women's and girls' programming, this program uses a trauma-informed, strength-based approach that helps girls strengthen their sense of self and build skills for healthy development.

This program is currently being run at Amherst Regional High School by SchoolsPlus and the Youth Health Centre.

Feelings Program

This program is designed to help students recognize and identify feelings and emotions. It also provides students with strategic tools they can use when they are frustrated or struggling to cope with a situation. This program is currently being run at Cumberland North Academy.
